Question nos. 24 to 27 are based on comprehension :

Read the passage and answer the questions :

If people wish to keep strong and well, they must always breathe fresh air. We cannot be always out of doors, but when we are indoors, we can keep our windows open. A house that has been built on a good plan has many windows. It is not good to have all the windows on one side of the room. The windows should be built on two sides of each room. The doors should be so placed that when the doors and windows are open, the fresh air can blow straight through the house.

We should only work and play where we can breathe pure fresh air all time. Some people think that night air is harmful. So they close all their doors and windows at night. Sometimes, they cover up their heads too. People who do this can never have good health and a long life.

24. A good room should have _____.
